NEWSPAPER MEN ARRIVE IN CITY

Seventy-five Journalists Receive Hearty Reception Today.

MATTERS DISCUSSED

The twenty-sixth annual meeting of the Virginia Press Association convened at the Elks' Auditorium this morning with seventy-five representatives of Virginia newspapers present. The association was called to order by President Charles B. Cooke, of the Richmond Evening Journal. An address of welcome was delivered by Mayor Thomas A. Fisher, and Congressman Charles C. Carlin, of the Eighth Congressional District delivered a brief address. The speech of Mr. Carlin was a most eloquent one. He told of the city's historical past but said that it was not content to remain in the past but had met all the requirements of a modern city. He referred to the centralization of power in the federal government, which he declared was one of the greatest dangers of the present times. Mr. Carlin made a deep impression upon the editors.

Mayor Fisher in his address said:

Gentlemen of the press, from every part of this imperial commonwealth, for and in the name of Alexandria, on of the smaller branches of the mother Virginia, I give you sincere and cordial greetings. The address of welcome. This is usually the part assigned the Mayor of a city upon occasions like the present, and even when imperfect of speech and lacking the essentials to make himself entertaining, one naturally desires in respect to sentiment, and courtesy to those with whom he associates, and also to those that he may meet only for a day, to manifest as he can, a willingness to do his part. Although they have not made me their father confessor, perhaps our mutual friends, Barrett of the Gazette, and Wedderburn, of the Times, promised you at your last convention that when you reached Alexandria the keys of the city would be handed you. Now, this is unnecessary, the "latch string was left on the outside" and all the keys thrown away. The committees assigned the plans for your entertainment, no doubt, will be equal to all emergencies.

Alexandria, like all places that you have visited, has its boundaries. You will have an opportunity to visit and see Mt. Vernon on our south, a ride on the Potomac on the east, and our surburban neighbor, Washington, on the north, willing to annex us, and Rosemont, and other pretty places on on our west which we have been trying to annex—but not with much success—will be visited as a part of your entertainment. It is our desire that our welcome be not gauged by the size of our town, or its corporate limits, but by the sincerity of our welcome and pleasure of your visit. If we fail, you will not come again; if we succeed in our efforts to entertain, you will call often.

President Cooke read his annual address to the association, which was as follows:

Fellow members of the Virginia Press Association:

It is with a great deal of pleasure and satisfaction I greet you at this the twenty-sixth annual gathering of this body. Through all the vicissitudes of duty at home I am proud to see so many of you recognize the principle that rest and recreation are essential to the successful conduct of your business, especially so when you come here for the double purpose of business and pleasure. The past year has been one of trials and hardships, and I hope you have come to this meeting with the avowed intention of giving your brethren the benefit of experience that may have been costly to you, but valuable to this association. The Virginia Press Association can be of immense value to you if you will give it the benefit of your knowledge, for only through the lesson taught by experience can we learn and progress.

"The question of successful operation of a daily or weekly paper is a grave problem and those of you who have made a success ought to be willing to tell your neighbor how you did it. By a mutual exchange of ideas and co-operation we can put our business on a paying basis. On previous occasions I have read your papers on the cost of operation of a weekly newspaper and the fallacy of trying to sell advertising at less than it cists per inch to produce and hope to make money. Don't be satisfied simply to make a living. The finding of the cost per inch is an easy matter. It only requires a little time, patience and gray matter—and if you have not discovered it that is your fault. Let this meeting result in some definite practical move towards a uniform fixed charge for advertising per inch per thousand circulation and you will have taken a step toward the goal of success from which you will never turn. Your future prosperity depends upon it. At the close of this meeting I will turn the affairs of the association to better and more competent hands. I can only say for my two years administration that it has been two years of honest endeavor Whether or not this has been accomplished it for you to say. Personally, I am not satisfied with what I have accomplished and I wish for my successor the fullest measure of success in carrying forward the aims and objects of the association. I hope that in this beautiful historic city of Alexandria you will have the best time you have ever had, and I know from the program laid out for you by the citizens of Alexandria you will go home feeling bigger, broader, and better for having enjoyed their hospitality and been able yourself in no small way to contribute to the pleasure of your fellowmembers, for in giving pleasure one reaches the highest attainment of human endeavor."

CHARLES B. COOKE
President Virginia Press Association

A number of important matters were considered by the association at today's meeting. The question of the government printing the return address on stamped envelopes was considered and it was shown that this is done at a loss to the government of not less than $1 per thousand. The association went on record as opposed to the practice and adopted a resolution favored by the National Editorial Association which will inaurate a movement to have the printing of return envelopes by the government discontinued. The question of second class rates was also shown and the danger of an increased rate for this class of matter was due to the demand for one cent letter postage was pointed out.

At one o'clock the association adjourned and went in automobiles to the plant of the Robert Portner Brewing Company where a trip of inspection over the brewery was made. Luncheon was served and at two o'clock the members of the association left for a trip to Arlington, Georgetown and Great Falls.

Tonight at 7:15 o'clock a trip will be made down the Potomac on the steamer "St. Johns" as guests of the Potomac and Chesapeake Steamboat Company. Senators Thomas S. Martin and Claude S. Swanson, of Virginia, and Representative Charles C. Carlin will be the guests of the association on this trip.

Tomorrow the association will meet at 10:30 o'clock and at 12:30 o'clock will leave for Mount Vernon where

VIRGINIA WANTS THE UNIVERSITY

OTHERS COMPETING

Conference Names Committee to Locate University at Some Point East of Mississippi.

Richmond, June 23.—Virginia has a splendid opportunity to secure within its borders the location of a great Methodist University to be established soon at an enormous expenditure by the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, at some point east of the Mississippi river to take the place of Vanderbilt University, whose control by reason of a recent court decision has been lost to the church. As far as can be learned, Virginia Methodists have made no effort as yet to secure the institution, but it is thought that this State will certainly enter the race within a short time.

Bishop Collins Denny, of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, said yesterday that he had no idea as to what action would be taken by the commission appointed by the general conference to select the location of the university, but personally he thought Virginia has a good chance of landing it, provided Virginians are awakened to the necessity of speedily taking action in the matter. It is understood that plans have already been laid by Georgia and the Carolinas in an effort to secure the university, but the commission appointed to decide the matter has given out nothing as to its plans.

From statements given out by officials of the Methodist Church the university soon to be established would distinguish any section wherein it may be placed. Something of the far-reaching effect which the university will have upon the educational and religious life of the South will be realized with the statement that those in charge of the project propose to expend at first the sum of $5,000,000 with the probability of making the institution twice as great a little later on. One hundred acres or more would probably be needed for the plant, and it is believed that at least fifty acres would be absolutely necessary as a site. Nothing has been said as to whether city or county will have preference in the matter of selecting a site.

Many believe that should Virginia enter the race, Ashland will be urged by Virginia Methodists as being the logical point for locating the greater institution.

ELECTION IN LYNCHBURG.

Five Candidates Enter Field for Mayor—Four Democrats.

Lynchburg, Va., June 23.—Lynchburg is engaging today in the warmest election that has occurred here since Virginia went under the restricted electorate, which was the result of the new State Constitution a decade ago, at which time a mayor is to be elected to succeed the late G. W. Smith, whose death occurred in May. The successful candidate, of whom there are five, will fill the office until August 31, 1916, that being Mayor Smith's unexpired term. The candidates are: F. W. Whitaker, acting mayor under election by the city council; Royston Jester and W. H. Jordan, young members of the local bar; Dr. P. H. Casey, a practicing physician and former city physician and president of the board of health, and Adon A. Yoder, the socialist. The first four named are democrats, the multiplicity of Democratic candidates being explained by the determination of the city committee not to hold a primary. The campaign has been on for a month and it has been devoid of personalities on the part of the four Democrats and without public speaking, excepting a meeting held Saturday night by Yoder. All of the candidates have strong organizations and practically the entire qualified vote will be polled.

BANDMEN GO FREE

Despite Fact Most of the Accused Members Were Found Guilty.

Richmond, Va., June 23.—Members of the Blues' Band, arrested for insubordination and violation of the articles of war, in connection with the dance at the Blues' Armory following the inauguration of Governor Stuart, were found guilty by the court-martial

There were however, four exceptions—these being the cases of men on whom summons were not issued

The Governor yesterday disapproved of the findings of the court-martial in the cases, due to the fact that the proceedings were held to be irregular in all but one case—that of Sergeant Thomas B. Slaughter.

The Governor endorsed the findings of the court as to the guilt of the men, but disapproved them because of technical irregularities. The right of a commanding officer to order members of a band to do duty such as was expected of the Blues' Band is upheld by the court-martial and approved by the Governor.

In the case of Sergeant Slaughter the court imposed a fine of $5 and costs. This is declared by the Governor to have been the only case in which the proceedings were entirely legal.

In passing on the case Governor Stuart ordered that the fine against Slaughter shall be remitted, holding that it would be unfair to impose a fine on him and to let the others go free because of technicalities.

According to the decision of the Governor the court which tried the cases erred in basing all the findings in all the cases on the same ground and having the same proceeding as in the Slaughter case.

The Governor orders that the band shall again report forthwith for duty. It is ordered released from arrest.

The Governor makes it plain that he would order the court to reconvene to retry all the cases, but to do so would entail a cost of not less than $1,000 and this he is unwilling to do.

WOMAN KISSES LION

Fondles Beast and Its Five Companions in Box Car Cage.

Chicago, June 23.—Miss Adgie Costillo yesterday kissed and fondled the lion which less than 24 hours before had torn her fiance, Emerson Dietrich, Jr., to death.

Around her, in the Santa Fe box car, at Sixteenth and Clark streets, leaped and played five other young cats, which likewise had tasted yesterday of the young Cornell graduate's blood.

Miss Costillo was crying when she entered the box car cage. At her side the lion that led the attack on Dietrich squatted on the ground, shaking his head to and fro. On his yellow sides were still visible the blood stains and a vicious scratch was across his nose. Miss Costillo, with a cloth, began washing Teddy's side. Then apparently overcome, she threw her arms around the lion and cried against his face. He blinked at her, reaching out his paw.

"Teddy, Teddy," the lion woman cried, "You killed him. How could you kill him?'

"What are you going to do with Todd—yhae him slain??" Miss Costillo was asked.

"No," sheanswered, tightening her arms about the animal's neck. "See he is not dangerous. I'll kiss him." She placed her lips against Teddy's, and, opening his mouth, placed her hand inside.

Miss Costillo then brought out the other pets, all smaller than Teddy. She put her arms around each of them and kissed them.

THE TERRIBLE THIRD RAIL.

Lad Seeking Water Probably Fatally Burned.

Millville, N. J., June 23.—Burman the 13-year-old son of Charles Hemingway, was terribly and perhaps fatally burned by falling on the third rail of the electric line of the West Jersey & Seashore Railroad here early yesterday evening. With several companions young Hemingway had been huckleberrying and attempted to cross the track to get a drink of water. He stumbled and fell, and his ear touched the highly charged rail. The lad's companions shouted for help and a glass worker, risking his own life, pulled the lad off the tracks. One of his ears was burned off and the scalp was seared and baked. Drs. Sheppard and Bennett dressed the burns, but the boy's recovery is regarded as doubtful.

FRICTION EXISTS AT THE OUTPOSTS

Mexican and United States Soldiers Reported to Jeer Each Other.

MISSING SOLDIER

Mexico's Internal Affairs Are, It Is Expected, to Be Settled by People of that Country.

New Orleans, June 23.—Gen. Carranza will not accept theX invitation of the United States government to send representatives to meet informally with agents of Huerta in an endeavor to select a provisional president of Mexico, according to a statement here today by Alfredo Breceda, private secretary of General Carranza, and a member of the latest commission Carranza is sending to Washington.

Vera Cruz, Mexico, June 23.—Friction between outposts of the American forces here and the Mexican command which holds the passes toward Mexico City, which has been increasing of late, became acute today when efforts were made to learn something of the fate of a missing American marine, who disappeared off post.

Surmising that the missing man, whose name the commanding officers refuse, may have been killed, as was Orderly Parks, the American outposts, in touch with the Mexicans, have shouted questions across the lines.

All the reply they got was jeers and laughter. Orders have been given that in no case must the Americans be the aggressors if a clash comes.

Up to a few days ago the relations between the outposts have been rather friendly than otherwise. Tobacco and other conveniences have passed between the pickets. In the last week, however, a steadily growing of feeling of hostility has been manifest from Huerta's troops, and all amenities have ceased.

Washington, June 23.—Mexico's internal affairs are now expected to be settled by Mexicans.

Constitutionalist representatives here are for the first time sanguine of success of mediation. They believe that the unofficial conferences to be held between the Huertista commissioners and the delegation designated by Carranza can agree on a plan of provisional government for Mexico that will prove acceptable to all sides. This view is indorsed by the Administration.

DANVILLE POSTMASTER

Postmaster-General Declares Former Rejection of Saunders Appointee Not Absolute.

Washington, June 23.—Postmaster-General Burleson declares that the turning down of J. R. Mitchell as postmaster at Danville after his recommendation by Congressman Saunders and the two Senators over six months ago in favor of James A. Lawson whose nomination was rejected by the Senate, will have no weight with the department should Congressman Saunders decide to again recommend his appointment.

"Although Mitchell was turned down before in favor of Lawson," said Burleson, "that does not imply that the department is prejudiced against him to the extent of making his appointment impossible. When the appointment is again brought before this department by the recommendation of a man like Congressman Saunders, we will consider it as an entirely new subject and with no bars placed against Mitchell or anyone else."

Man's Body Taken from River.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., June 23.—The body of a man was taken from the upper rapids of the Niagara River early today, known as Suicide Point, twenty-five feet above the brink of the American falls. (Special Dispatch to the Gazette.)

Richmond, Va., June 23.—After a hearing lasting several days, Magistrate Sunday and Smith, of Henrico county, today sent John Clements, the negro identified by Mrs. Fannie Chenault as her assailant, to the grand jury, charged with a capital offense. The case has been bitterly contested, but the evidence adduced by the prosecution was considered strong enough to justify the negro being held for trial by a jury.

The boy was digging a wallowing place in the pen for the pigs and was attacked. The grandfather entered the pen to help the boy and the hog turned upon him.

Mrs. Thompson broke her arm in aiding in rescuing the victims.

Council's Donation and Other Amounts Likely to Be Sent in Will Bring Sum to $50,000.

While there has been a slight lull in activities toward raising funds for a new Alexandria Hospital on account of the meeting of the Virginia Press Association, those interested in the proposed structure are not sleeping on their oars ,and ways and means of raising about ten thousand dollars in order to bring the subscriptions up to fifty thousand dollars are still in evidence.

Six subscriptions were made today toward the edifice ,and these occasional donations, small though they be, are keepjing the tide slowly rising all the time.

The work of the committee, which began on the 18th of April, has brought forth abundant fruit, much more than it was supposed could be produced in so short a time. The interest among the people is not waning, as is evdenced by the continued flow of subscriptions.

L. C. Tefft, superintendent of the Shaner Union Sunday school, was the defendant, and Rev. W .M. Bracken, pastor of Dravo Methodist Church; Wesley Muse and R .E. Stewart were the prosecutors. A physical clash is said to have grown out of disagreement over church matters.

"I got Rev. Bracken nad Superintendent Tefft to lead in prayer," said Justice Douglass. "The two lawyers joined. When we arose from our knees the litigants agreed to drop the case and divide the costs."

Why Suffer from Rheumatism?

When relief from rheumatic pains may be had at so small a cost it is surprising that anyone should fail to avail himself of it. Joseph Copparelli, Canastota, N. One application relieved him wonderfully, and a few days' treatment effected a cure. Many others have found quick relief by applying this liniment. For sale by all dealers.

REPAIRING THE TRACKS

Southern Railway Employees Replanking Between Rails on Union Street.

The work of repairing the tracks and replacing planking between the same on Union street is now in progress. In the Board of Aldermen recent attention was called to the fact that the Southern Railway Company had not responded to the suggestion of the committee on streets who thought the time had arrived for repairs to the company's tracks on the streets of the city.

Over twenty years ago the company, having been allowed to place an additional track on that thoroughfare, agreed to pave the street with cobble stone. Since that time but little has been done in the way of repairs.

With double tracks upon Union street, the thoroughfare is virtually turned over to the railway company, and in some places the street and tracks are in a bad condition.

In this connection attention may be called to the fact that the square running from Wilkes street to Union has been absorbed by the railway company, and that that square has for some time been in a dangerous condition, the flimsy wooden fencing which was placed from the tunnel eastward having been nearly obliterated. There is a high embankment at that the outlet of the tunnel own which people are liable to tumble from the absence of the fence which was in a measure a safeguard.

Wilkes street which is used by the railway from Union to Alfred streets also needs attention.

MAY LIVE IN GLASS HOUSES

Berlin, June 23.—Paul Scheerhart, thes well-known writer, prophesie that the architecture of the future will be of glas sand that the world will be inhabited by a happy race living under the good influence of light.

"The houses will be of glass," he says, "with all wood eliminated. The furniture will be of wrought iron and the framework of the building will be of iron and rustproof, while the walls will be of double glass to insure warmth and of many colors in order to baffle inquisitive persons.

The buildings will be heated by electricity and the walls decorated in majolica effects. The porch of every home will have three sides of glass and there will be glass garden houses, where one may live in the sunshine by day and the starlight by night."

Herr Scheerhart draws a brilliant word picture of a city, with stores, churches and public buildings of glass, all brilliantly lighted in many colors.

COUNCIL MEETS TONIGHT

Exhibits of Auditor, City Treasuer and Clerk of Gas May be Presented.

A regular meeting of both boards of the City Council will be held tonight. Most of the business which will come up will be of a miscellaneous nature, as the tax bill, license law and appropriation ordinances have been disposed of.

The reports of the Auditor, City Treasurer, Clerk and Superintendent of Gas are generally submitted at the last meeting in June.

But few important measures will be in the hands of the committees of Council after the meeting tonight, and, as is the custom, both boards are likely to adjourn sine die at the first meeting in July.

The boards bi-yearly adjourn in July to the second Tuesday in October, but this year the new Council will organize on the first of September. Council may, after the election of officers, recess until October.

DEATH IN FALL DOWN SHAFT.

Youth Plunges Seven Stories in Cold Storage Plant.

Philadelphia, June 23.—Falling from a height of seven floors down an elevator shaft yesterday, John Jonson, 21 years old, of No. 954 North Sartain street, was instantly killed. The young man was employed by the Industrial Cold Storage & Warehouse Company, at American and Berks street, and in some manner yet unexplained slipped into the shaft. Fellow workmen who heard the man's screams as he plunged down hurried to the bottom of the pit and found him mangled almost beyond recognition.

NO MERCY FOR BLIND TIGERS.

Justice Crutchfield Imposes Heavy Sentences Upon Two Men.

Richmond, June 23.—Heavy punishment was meted out yesterday in the police court to two operatos of blind tigers who were arrested Sunday. In each case a fine of $100 was imposed, in addition, to sixty days and $500 security for twelve months.

Christo Constandinides, a Greek though he admitted dispensing refreshments on the Sabbath Day, claimed that they were of the non-intoxicating variety. A bottle labelled in Greek letters, which was produced as Exhibit 2, contained whisky, and a mean brand at that, according to the testimony of a Syrian connoisseur who was pressed into service as a witness.

STORMS IN OHIO.

Columbus, Ohio, June 23.—Various kinds of storms broke over central Ohio yesterday, injuring a score of persons and damaging thousands of dollars' worth of property. Rain fell in some sections, breaking a drought which had threatened growing crops, but in others the precipitation was accompanied by terrific winds and lightning. In the western part of the state crops suffered from a heavy hailstorm.

A tornado passed through Shelby county, working havoc in its path and terrorizing the citizens of Quincy, a village of 500 population, many of whom had narrow escapes from death. Several buildings, including a church, were destroyed, trees were uprooted, and telphone and telegraph service demoralized. The tornado was followed by a violent hailstorm.

Lightning set fire to two 800-barrel oil tanks near Newark and a spectacular blaze resulted. Many farm buildings, ignited by lightning, also were reported burned.

BOAT LYING BOTTOM UP

Port Huron, Mich., June 23.—D. R. Lynn, a marine man of this city, has received an apparently authentic report that the overturned hull of one of the steamers which floundered in the great storm of November 9, 1913, has been located a short distance from Goderich, Ontario, in Lake Huron. The boat is lying bottom up, at what is known as Twelve Fathom Shoal.

It is thought the wreck may be that of the Regina or the Wexford, bodies and wreckage from both these steamers having been washed ashore near that point.

Fishermen have reported that in calm weather they have been able to stand on the boat's bottom. It is understood here an investigation party has been sent to the place by Canadian marine men.

MEETS HORRIBLE DEATH.

Frank Panney, of Near Sunnyside, Cut in Two at Sawmill.

Whitehorne, Va., June 23.—A fatal accident occurred near Sunnyside a few days ago when Mr. Frank Panney met a tragic end.

It appears that Mr. Panney was operating a sawmill an in some way got one of his hands caught in the boards of a log as it passed on a trolley leading from the mill. In trying to extricate his hand his body was drawn or jerked right across the circular saw, driven by a 12 horse-power engine, and he was literally cut in twain between the thighs and ribs. He soon died.

Mr. Panney came to America some fourteen years ago from Calabria, Italy.

Drought in Culpeper.

Culpeper, Va., June 23.—The drought which continues unbroken throughout this county has reached serious proportions, as already the pastures have become alarmingly short, and the hay crop, usually a most important one throughout this section, is practically ruined. Corn gives prospects of a half crop, and the wheat harvest is light. Gardens are now drying up and unless the rains come very soon will be past help for this season. The friut growers are also complaining.

Woman Killed by Lightning.

Luray, Va., June 23.—An electrical storm of unusual violence passed over Page county yesterday, breaking the drought but doing much damage. In Springfield district, in the northern part of the county, crops were destroyed by hail. In Luray houses were removed from their foundations Mrs. Thomas Young, of Rileyville, 10 miles north of this town, was killed by lightning and several others sustained shocks.

GATHERING OF NEWSPAPER MEN.

The Virginia Press Association convened in this city today and the members have been given a cordial reception, not only by fellow-wielders of the quill ,but by Alexandrians generally. Every effort will be made to render their stay in our city one long to be remembered.

The Virginia Press Association is composed of successors of men who in bygone years were not only able and prominent figures in their own State, but throughout the country.

The Ritchies, the Daniels, the Pollards, Snowdens, Southalls, Hughes, and others who formed that great galaxy of newspaper men have long since passed into the other world, and their shades may hover around the gathering today, proud of the men upon whom their mantles have fallen.

It may be proper to mention the fact that but one of the cotemporaries of the above is now in the land of the living—George C. Wilde, who was engaged in the newspaper work in this city and Richmond before and after the Civil War. He is approaching the nonagenarian milepost, and can only be with the gathering in Alexandria in spirit.

The meeting of the association will bring many reminiscences to the minds of those who remember what composed newspaper life threescore years ago. Knights of the quill, or many of them, were as the knight errants of old—it took nerve—and but few aggressive editors in those days escaped so-called affairs of honor.

It is not so now . The editor of this day is not an individual posting with a chip upon his head and pistols in his pocket. He realizes that his calloing needs no such accountrements. It may be mentioned in passing that a Richmond editor, who was assassinated many years ago, had three pistols in his pockets when picked up limp and dead.

We could fill up this page with unfortunate incidents which have occurred in the Old Dominion between newspaper men or which have been the outcome of newspaper articles. But few, however, have occurred in Alexandria, from the fact that the elder Snowden was extremely careful to avoid offending any one, and the Smiths, who published an opposition paper in ante-bellum days, attempted to follow the precepts taught in the sermon on the mount.

How much better it would be were all animated by the same spirit.

But times have changed and people have changed with them. Newspaper men now mingle in social intercourse minus blood in their eyes, and with the best of feeling toward each other. This they are doing today, with the history of the past as much to be deplored as the days of Gustavus Adolphus are to the true Christian.

After the publishers of the Gazette had passed through cruel persecutions during the Civil War and their plant had finally been destroyed by soldiers, the venerable editor, then in his prime, when the paper reappeared in the form in which it had been printed for two-thirds of a century, wrote a two-column editorial. Among other things he aked the question, "What good has ever come from aggressive and insolent editorials?" This was written in 1866 and the query can be repeated today.

Journalism has taken immense strides since the days to which we refer. Were the luminaries of the olden times to enter a newspaper office now they would be lost. A Morgenthaler would be a Chinese puzzle, as would also a typewriter. The fact that that power to run presses which print both sides at once and folds and counts papers, is transported upon wires would be as wonderful to them as stories in the Arabian Nights entertainments.

ALEXANDRIA REDIVIVANT.

It was with conscious pride that Alexandrians welcomed the members of the Virginia Press Association today. We felt a jus t pride in our achievements during the past few years, as the visitors gazed upon many places that had no existence when some of them stopped in Alexandria in bygone days. Our magnificent boulevard, Washington street, had no unsightly cobblestones to be gazed upon by guests, while other thoroughfares, transformed a short time ago into modern streets ,left us nothing for which apologies need be made. An up-to-date female school building has taken the place of an old and neglected manor of the past, which passengers landing at the Old Southern Railway depot on Duke street, were wont to pass. Beautified streets, some extending throughout their length, met the eyes of the visitors.

Alexandria, a part of the Old Dominion, of which fact her people have ever been proud, has not made the commercial progress of some cities in the commonwealth, through no fault of her own, but the push and enterprise of her people is as marked here as any where else in Virginia. When the city once conceives a practical idea it is carried out with determination, as is evidenced by many things which have been accomplished, those now in progress and still others which have not yet crystalized.

It is only necessary to mention a few of the successful movements which have recently been inaugurated and will be pushed to a finish.

The building of a high school at a cost of $35,000, after having paid $13,000 for the land on which to erect it; the erection of a $12,000 engine house, on land already owned by the city, which will aggregate about $20,000; improvements on the armory for our soldier boys at a cost of $7,000, this not including the regular annual appropriation of the city; improvements of streets and sewerage amounting to $2,000. In addition to these the public treasury of our city is to give $5,000 to the hospital fund, and the people and their friends by voluntary contributions, have increased this amount nearly $35,000.

The above refer only to the larger amounts expended for public works, and do not include the thousand and one small sums which Council is spending all the time for the betterment of our streets and institutions.

Killed His Friend.

Fayetteville, N. C., June 23.—Eugene Howell shot and killed "Kin" Lancaster in this city Sunday shortly after 4 o'clock. Peculiar to relate, they were good friends and were together all Sunday evening, drinking blind tiger liquor, and it is said that Howell has only an indistinct recollection of the affair.

Facts brought out at the coroner's inquest seem to indicate that Lancaster walked down the Atlantic Coast Line track in the outskirts of the city and sat down on the track with his head in his hands between his knees, and Howell, whose navigation had been impeded on account of his inbibing, decided he would shoot at the object on the track, then some 20 feet from him. The ball from Howell's pistol entered the top of Lancaster's head, killing him instantly.

Mr. Ragland Writes Interesting Letter on This Subject.

Madison Heights, Va.—Mr. Chas. A. Ragland, of this place, writes: "I have been taking Thedford's Black-Draught for indigestion, and other stomach troubles, also colds, and find it to be the very best medicine I have ever used.

Nervousness, nausea, heartburn, pain in pit of stomach, and a feeling of fullness after eating, are sure symptoms of stomach trouble, and should be given the proper treatment, as your strength and health depend very largely upon your food and its digestion.

To get quick and permanent relief from these ailments, you should take a medicine of known curative merit.

As 75 years of splendid success, in the treatment of just such troubles, proves the real merit of Thedford's Black-Draught. Safe, pleasant, gentle in action, and without bad after-effects, it is sure to benefit both young and old. For sale everywhere. Price 25c. N. C. 122.

TO THE OWNERS OF DOGS.

The law of the city makes it the duty of the Mayor to give public notice to persons owning or harboring dogs to come forward and take out license for the same from the City Auditor or be reported and fined upon failure to do so.

The license law requires this tax to be paid before July 1, 1914. The law also requires that the tag shall be worn on the collar of the dog. This is a requirement that can and must be complied with. The policemen are expected and are directed to report to the police court the owners of all unlicensed dogs. The license on each dog regardless of sex is ($1.50) One dollar and fifty cents.

Don't Lose Sleep Coughing at Night.

Take Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. The very first dose surprises you. It glides down your throat and spreads a healing, soothing coating over the inflamed tickling surface. That's immediate relief. It loosens up the tightness in your chest, stops stuffy wheezy breathing, eases distressing, racking, tearing coughs, soothes the irritated, inflamed bronchial tubes and air passages. Children love it. It is mildly laxative—as a cough medicine should be, and does not upset or distress the most sensitive stomach. Refuse any substitute. Contains no opiates.

VOWS OF POVERTY VALID.

Supreme Court Reverses Decision in Father Wirth Case.

Washington, June 23.—Doubt cast upon the validity of vows to poverty in man Catholic orders was removed yesterday by the Supreme Court, which reversed the decision of the Eighth United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

The lower court, sitting in Minnesota, held the vows void as against public policy on the ground that they did not permit a person making them ever to withdraw from the order.

The Supreme Court yesterday, speaking through Justice Hughes, announced that the lower court had fallen into error by not distinguishing between the religious and civil nature of the vows. It was pointed out that a person was permitted under the organizations of the orders to withdraw civilly, although his withdrawal in a religious sense was a matter of conscience.

The case arose in the settlement of the estate of Father Augustin Worth, in charge of a church at Springfield, Minn., at the time of his death. Relatives claimed property in his possession, despite his vows to the Order of St. Benedict to possess no property, and to turn over to the order all his worldly possessions.

Climax of 40 Years' Quarrel.

North Reading, Mass., June 23.—A forty years' quarrel over timber land came to a climax Sunday when Charles Samuel Harris, a farmer, was killed by a bullet fired from the revolver of his brother James.

Directly after the shooting James surrendered to the police. He said his brother had attacked him with an axe after an argument about cutting timber on their land and that he shot in self-defense. Charles Harris was 65 years old, James is 58.

According to James Harris' statement to the police, although the two brothers lived together for forty years, they always had been at odds over the disposition of the timber. On Sunday Charles went to the lot and cut several small trees. When he returned to the house James met him in the kitchen and the ancient quarrel was renewed.

Ernest Rawlett, 14 years old, 304 Linworthp lace southwest Washington, fell into the Tidal basin near the bureau of engraving and printing yesterday and was drowned.

ARE YOU A MATHEMATICIAN?

Then Solve This Problem and Win a Prize of $25,000.

The largest single prize offered for a scientific discovery is still going begging. The prize has been open to competition for many years. At first sight the problem for a solution of which the prize is offered looks no more difficult than those with which high school students are familiar, but many of the greatest mathematicians in the world have tried to solve the problem and given it up in despair.

It is known as Fermatow problem. Nearly 300 years ago Fermat, one of the greatest mathematicians who ever lived, stated that the equation $x^n+y^n=z^n$ could not be satisfied by whole numbers when n is an odd prime number different from unity. The problem may be stated in another way—viz, that $x^n+y^n=z^n$ cannot be satisfied when n is any integer greater than 2. The one follows as a logical conclusion from the other.

The Academy of Sciences of Goettingen, Germany, offers a prize of 100,000 marks (about $25,000) for proof of this assertion. This is the prize that is going begging.

Dr. Joseph Bowden, professor of mathematics, Adelphi college, Brooklyn, asked by the Scientific American to state the precise conditions for winning the prize, writes that the Academy of Sciences will not consider any manuscripts sent in, but only proposed solutions printed and offered for sale as monographs, in books on mathematics or in mathematical periodicals. The award will not be made until two years after the publication of the memoir in order that mathematicians may have ample opportunity to test and criticise the solution.

The object of these restrictions is to save the academy from being flooded with undigested manuscrips. It will only consider solutions that have stood the test of some competent editor or publisher in the first place.

FRANCE IN SOUTH AMERICA.

South America is the melting pot of the Latin races, and the French influence now seems to predominate over that of Spain. Italy is well represented, especially in strong Argentina. Brazil seems to be the most polyglot of them all, for here the native Portuguese is mingled not only with the Spanish and French and English, but a great deal of German. In the south of Brazil 90 per cent of the people speak German, and Portuguese is not always enforced as the language even of the public schools.

The large German colonies here do not affiliate with these people as they do with the Anglo-Saxon brothers of the north. They live to themselves, they retain their own language and customs. In Chile, where there are many English, too, the Germans direct the education of the country. Buenos Aires is close to this Germanic group in southern Brazil and feels its influence, though Argentina seems the most unified and progressive of the republics in point of literary expression and culture.

French influence also is felt in Brazil. Rio de Janeiro itself was founded as a refuge for French Huguenots, though they were afterward driven back. In Paris today one hears that a youth is to emigrate to America, but probably it is to Rio that he is going. There are many French immigrants, and French is required in most of the schools and is next to the native tongue in importance in northern Brazil. Formerly in Brazil Spanish or German always came next to French, but it is said that some of the states now require English as the third language and that Brazilians are proud of their English.—Christian Science Monitor.

Suspicious.

Ernest Vizetelly, who has published a record of his experiences during the Franco-Prussian war, tells a story to illustrate the popular mania for discovering "treason" that prevailed in Paris.

He says that one day a soldier remarked to a comrade:

"I am sure that the captain is a traitor."

"How's that?" was the rejoinder.

"Well," said the suspicious soldier, "have you not noticed that every time he orders us to march forward we invariably encounter the enemy?"

Executions in Europe.

Methods of putting criminals to death vary. In Europe the guillotine is the mode of execution most generally employed. Austria, Holland and Portugal are the only other countries besides Great Britain where criminals are hanged. In Oldenburg they are shot, in Brunswick they are beheaded, and in Spain they are garroted.—London Telegraph.

Diplomacy.

"You persuaded your husband to join a glee club?"

"Yes," answered Mrs. Higgins; "when he starts to sing at home I can now advise him not to tire his voice, and when he sings in the club I can't hear him."—Washington Star.

Needed Airing.

"What's the matter with you?" demanded Borem hotly. "I've got a right to air my opinions, haven't I?"

"Oh, of course," replied Brightly. "They're so stale and musty they certainly need something of that sort."—Philadelphia Press.

The clothing of our minds certainly ought to be regarded before that of our bodies.—Steele.

ENERGY IN ATOMS

Likened to Infinite Power in an Infinitesimal Space.

EACH ONE IS A TINY WORLD.

If All Should Burst Their Walls at Once the Universe Would Dissolve in an Instant—A Magic Force That Science Is Seeking to Control.

Do you remember when Aladdin had at last got down into the cave under the tree, what inexpressible magic he found around him? But among all the riches of the cave there was only one little dust covered thing that was really worth the risk he had run because it alone was truly loved and unlike anything else in the world—the necromantic lamp that had the genie for its slave. With that in his possession the poor boy was more powerful than all the monarchs in the world—provided that he knew how to handle the lamp, and that knowledge came to him by accident.

I have just been pondering over some statements by Jean Becquerel, the French physicist, about the contents of the atoms of which matter is composed, and they have forcibly recalled Aladdin's adventures to my mind. The interior of an atom is a little world infinitely more marvelous than the cave that contained the magic lamp and it conceals powers incomparably greater than that of Aladdin's good genie.

To the scientific imagination the inside of an atom is inversely as wondrous as the starry heavens. It is infinite power packed into infinitesimal space. That, of course, is an exaggeration; but this is a case in which one has to speak in imposing figures because the facts surpass all ordinary experience.

"The atom," says Jean Becquerel "is a closed world, or almost closed and it is that fact which constitutes its individuality."

This "closed world" of the atom is so small that if we could increase the powers of our microscopes a thousandfold we could not render it visible and yet that minute speck of matter incloses a "solar system" as elaborate as that of the great sun with its planets, and keeps locked up there an energy so colossal that the plainest statements of fact that can be made about it seem like wild dreams.

"The emanation from radium" (a substance whose atoms spontaneously give out at least a part of their energy) "is capable of liberating 2,500,000 times more energy than the most violent chemical reaction known."

The world within the atom ordinarily behaves as if it had no concern with the world outside. It is sufficient unto itself. It is a little medieval China, with closed ports and insurmountable walls all round. Still, a very few atoms like those of radium, have a tendency to communicate with the outer world by a kind of explosion.

If all atoms should burst their walls simultaneously the whole universe would be dissolved in an instant.

The atoms that do disintegrate pass from change to change. Within their limits the foundations of matter are broken up; the distinctions of the fundamental elements are confounded; things lose their nature and shift into other things; uranium gives birth to radium and to polonium; radium brings forth helium, and the last transformation of polonium that has thus far been observed is into plain lead! It is like a transmigration of atomic souls.

But this is not the only consequence of the opening of the world of the atom. That opening releases energy in forms which we can recognize and which some day perhaps we may be able to utilize.

Atomic energy is the magic lamp that the Aladdin of science has found in nature's secret cave.

One day Aladdin's mother found the rusty lamp where he had cast it aside as useless and thought that she would polish it up. Instantly, at the first vigorous rub, the slave of the lamp stood before her, ready to do her bidding!

The Aladdin of science has not thrown his lamp aside. He knows it is full of magic. He is sure that if he rubs it aright the genie will appear before him, but he has not yet learned the right stroke. And perhaps after all it will be with him as it was with the other Aladdin—accident will teach him the secret.

When that day comes, if ever it does, there will hardly be any limit to the transforming power of man over the world he lives in.—Garrett P. Serviss in New York Journal.

Warned Against Coffee.

Once upon a time people wanted state wide prohibition of coffee. In his book, "London in English Literature," Percy H. Boynton says of the old coffee houses:

"As the number of them increased broadsides appeared against them. One was entitled 'The Woman's Petition Against Coffee,' and it asserted that coffee drinking encouraged idling and talkativeness and led men to trifle away their time, scald their chops and spend their money, all for a little base, black, thick, nasty, bitter, nauseous puddle water!"

BEAUTY OF THE HUDSON.

Its Picturesque Scenery Far Surpasses That of the Rhine.

The Hudson river is very remarkable in several respects. In the first place, for 150 miles of its length it is not a true river but a fiord. From Albany to the ocean its rock bottom, with the exception of a few islands, is below sea level. How far below, it is not accurately known. Opposite Storm King mountain engineers bored a thousand feet down into the dirt and sand that fill the gorge under the water and did not find rock bottom. The shore line at Albany is at practically the same elevation as the shore line at New York, and the tide rises at Albany two and eight-tenths feet. The upward and downward flowing of the tide, of which Hudson took advantage in his voyage, had long been noticed by the Indians, who spoke of the river with wonder as the stream that flowed both ways.

The river is unsurpassed for its great natural beauty. The distinguished German surgeon, Dr. Adolph Lorens, in 1902 declared it more beautiful than the Rhine, which depends on the castles on its banks for its main charm. Primarily, the beauty of the Hudson is due to the extraordinary range of its geological history. From its source to the sea it is an epitome of creation. It rises in the Adirondack mountains, which tower to a great height. The famous Highlands of the Hudson, between which Hudson sailed 300 years ago, are of the same Archaean rocks and were once a group of islands. The Catskills are more modern and the Palisades still younger. The latter rising sheer 300 to 500 feet above the water's edge, were once a fiery molten mass and their columnar shape is due to the manner in which the mass cooled off.

These facts indicate what a storehouse for fascinating research the Hudson valley is for the person, young or old, who will study it with the mind as well as with the eye.—Edith Townsend Kaufmann in Leslie's.

SOLONS AND SALARIES.

Some European States Pay Their Lawmakers Only a Mite.

Italy and Spain are the only European countries which offer no monetary reward to their members of parliament. The Portuguese legislators are not remunerated by the state, but they have a free pass for traveling on all railways in the country, and their constituencies are permitted to pay a sum equivalent to 15 shillings for each day's sitting.

Denmark is another country which believes that its political gentlemen are ready to work for almost nothing. Members of parliament there only receive 6 shillings per day, but they have the peculiar privilege of a free seat in the Royal theater in Copenhagen.

The Norwegian honorable member is thankful for a daily income of 12 shillings, though he must do his duty properly to get it. He loses a day's pay when he takes a day off. Members of the Swiss diet work under the same threat. If they are absent they lose salary which amounts in their case to 16 shillings per day.

Roumania pays her lawmakers a sovereign per day, and Bulgaria offers 16 shillings. In the latter country members living in the capital have 4 shillings deducted because they have no train fares to pay and only one home to keep up.

Hungary treats her statesmen just half as well as England does, allowing them £200 per annum. They have, however, a liberal allowance for house rent and can travel first class with second class tickets.—London Tit-Bits.

Keeping Your Word.

The following quotation from De Morgna's "When Ghost Meets Ghost" may help a few to see the moral issue more clearly. Mr. Jerry began feebly. "You can't do more than keep your word, Mo." * * * Mo, a fine old ex-prizefighter, replies:

"Yes, you can, Jerry. You can keep your meanin'. And you can do more than that. You can keep to what the other party thought you meant, when you know. I know this time. I ain't in a court o' justice, Jerry, dodgin' about, and I know when I'm square by the feel."

Played With Fire Balls.

For many centuries polo, or chaugan, as it was then called, was a favorite pastime with Asiatic rulers. A contemporary annalist records of Akbar, the greatest of Mogul emperors, that "he plays at chaugan on dark nights, the balls being set on fire. For the sake of adding splendor to the game his majesty has knobs of gold and silver fixed to the chaugan sticks. If one of these breaks any player that gets hold of the pieces may keep them."

Good Advice.

"Young man," said the boss, "come hither and listen." He approached. "When you've made a mistake forget it and go on to the next job. Don't potter around all day adding a lot of finishing touches."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Farsighted.

ATE AND WAS SAD

Yet It Was a Dish For Which He Had Yearned For Years.

A TRAGEDY IN GASTRONOMY.

[illegible] and an [illegible]

Propositions to an English Epicure.

We all know that famous poem of Thackeray's which begins:

A street there is in Paris famous
For which no rime our language yields, and goes on to tell of the tavern where the genial Titmarsh in the days when he was a Paris correspondent "ate and drank the bouillabaisse."

As a result of that delightful poem tens of thousands of Englishmen have yearned to eat bouillabaisse. Thackeray puts it so beautifully! The steaming dish of stewed fish that he conjures up in his lines—how appetizing it seems! I know that it was quite early in my teens when I first read that poem, and from that moment there was formed in my mind a firm resolve to eat some day of bouillabaisse.

My opportunity came not long ago when I visited Marseilles. It was nearly half past 9 when I sat down in the dining room of the hotel.

"There is no bouillabaisse on the menu," I said severely to the maitre d'hotel. "I have come to Marseilles specially to eat it." He replied that it was not a specialty of the house, but that it could always be prepared. How long would it take? Twenty-five minutes, perhaps a little longer. "But I think monsieur would find it rather heavy at such a late hour."

He was not encouraging, this maitre d'hotel. I did not accept for a moment his suggestion that bouillabaisse was too heavy a dish for half past 9 at night. Thackeray had not talked about heaviness. But twenty-five minutes! I ordered an omelet.

At midnight, walking down the famous Cannebiere, back to the hotel, I was hailed by a familiar voice. It was that of a friend whom I had not seen for a long time. Gratefully I grasped his hand and told him that I intended to eat bouillabaisse as soon as possible. And my respect for him was considerably enhanced when he told me that he had eaten some that very afternoon, an hour after his arrival in Marseilles. Here was the true spirit, and I related to him, with some bitterness, my experience with the maitre d'hotel. "Well, it is rather heavy stuff," he said. But I brushed this aside, and we arranged to meet at lunch on the morrow, when I should have the best that Marseilles could give me.

There are, as everybody knows, two places at Marseilles for bouillabaisse—Pascal's and Basso's, on the Vieux Port. We decided on Basso's.

"Bouillabaisse," I said laconically. I paid no attention to what my friend ordered. No other dish interested me. But in a minute or so a curious looking mess was set down before him.

"What's that stuff you're going to eat?" I asked.

"That's bouillabaisse," he said, "but it's not mine."

I started. This bouillabaisse, this curious looking stuff, with indigestible looking lumps of fish floating in a bilious and oily saffron liquid! I know not what I had expected bouillabaisse to be, but it certainly was not this. There was a piece of fish which I recognized as eel, and I loathe eels. The broad tail of another and unknown fish stuck up out of the opaque liquid. But it was the yellow liquid itself which repelled. It shouted biliousness, and the smell of saffron that arose with the steam made me feel ill. Oh, Thackeray!

I pecked at the eel—or it may have been a lamprey—explored the various other fish, tasted gingerly of the thick saffron liquid on one of the pieces of toast that floated in it. But mine was no palate for bouillabaisse. I made the waiter take the mess away and bring lamb cutlets.

But I had tasted of bouillabaisse and was not to forget it. All day long the terrible taste of saffron remained with me. Nothing would shift it; not Marseilles tea, nor many golden bocks, nor dinner. In fact, the bouillabaisse of lunch spoiled the dinner. And at midnight, in a cafe on the Cannebiere, my friend confided a secret to me. "When we fell in with each other just twenty-four hours ago," he said, "I was suffering just as you are now. The horrible taste of saffron had remained obstinately with me ever since lunch and has not quite gone even yet. But you told me you had come to Marseilles to eat bouillabaisse, and I knew nothing I could say would dissuade you. But no doubt the bitterness of this moment will fade away, and as time passes you will tell your friends in England how excellent is the real bouillabaisse if only you have it in Marseilles."

"Never! I would die first!" I exclaimed firmly.—London Standard.

Africa's Pygmy Antelopes.

The pygmy antelope of the Gold Coast of Africa is the smallest of cud chewing animals. It stands about ten inches high at the withers—that is, about as high as a fox terrier. The male has minute horns that run straight back in the line of the forehead. The pygmy antelope was described in 1705 by the Dutch traveler Bosman, who, in his "Description of Guinea," says that it is called the "king of the bucks" by the natives. By English writers it is often called the "royal antelope."

Do one thing at a time and the big things first.—Lincoln.

Post Toasties

For That Bedtime Snack

The kiddies need something that is dainty and appetizing, don't they? And you want to be sure that they have a food that is easily digested—one that will not disturb their sleep.

They are made of the hearts of the finest Indian corn, perfectly cooked, delicately sweetened and salted, rolled into thin, ribbony flakes and toasted to a crisp, golden brown.

They have that indescribable flavour—sweet and delicious, that so delights the taste.

Just pour from the package and add cream and sugar, or sprinkle over fresh berries or fruit.

Easy to serve and mighty good.

Had Lung Trouble and Expected to Die

With the civilized world anxiously seeking a specific for Lung Trouble, the number of recoveries brought about through the use of Eckman's Alterative, a medicine for Throat and Lung Troubles, is attracting universal attention. For fifteen years Eckman's Alterative has been used and the reports of recoveries in many supposed hopeless cases indicate that this medicine is doing a vast amount of good. Read this:—

"Gentlemen: I was taken sick in November, 1908, with a very bad cold and dizzy spells. The doctor then pronounced my case as Malaria Fever. I grew steadily worse. Had two consultations held over me and the verdict was that the fever had affected my lungs and that my case was hopeless; only gave me two months to live. My physician had tried most all kinds of treatment and none did me any good, so he asked my husband if he objected to him trying a proprietary medicine. So I began on your Alterative. I was in bed from November 30, 1908, until February 25, 1909, and was thought dying several times. Today I am healthier and stronger than ever."
